BATTERER’S INTERVENTION PROGRAMS (BiP)

Disclaimer: Many BiPs present the work that they do in terms of “holding abusers accountable”. The vast majority of BiPs though, are used as a punishment for people who have been convicted of DV or other violent crimes. According to the World Health Organization, a large percentage of people who enter BiP do not complete the program and these programs across the board present only “moderate success” rates. Because these are often court mandated programs, the goal of BiPs of “holding abusers accountable” holds little weight outside of the program itself. Overall, BiPs “do not change batterers’ attitudes towards women or DV, and they have little to no impact on reoffending” (nij.gov).
